Not much impact on PVs; 2Ws to feel the heat

VARUN SINGH &
SAJAN C KUMAR
New Delhi/Chennai, August 5

THE PASSENGER VEHICLE
segment may not get impacted much by the 50 bps rate hike announced by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Friday, having a significant impact on the residential real estate sales. However, property consultants expect the momentum to slow down, and may even act as a dampener to sales in the festive season.

SHUBHRA TANDON
New Delhi, August 5

Against the backdrop of rising income and employment levels and buoyant customer sentiment, this spike in rates is unlikely to affect residential sales

ABHISHEK KAPOOR
CEO, PURAVANKARA

MONETARY POLICY

This is the third consecutive increase in the

repo rate taking it to 5.4%, the same as the pre-pandemic levels, and marking a full reversal of the policy during Covid. With this hike, there is a total of 140 basis points increase since May 2022, which has been done keeping in mind the rise in global rates driven by US Fed and the central banks of Europe.

According to Knight Frank India, assuming the full transmission of the cumulative rate hikes till Friday, a prospective homebuyers' affordability shrinks by around 11% — which means a buyer's purchasing capability of a house of ₹1 crore has shrunk to ₹89 lakhs now.

However, realty developers believe that given the rise in employment and income levels, the interest rate hikes will not dent residential sales.

"Against the backdrop of rising income and employment levels and buoyant customer sentiment, this spike in rates is unlikely to affect residential sales. The sustained momentum in the real estate sector will, in turn, continue to have an enduring and positive impact on the country's overall economic growth," said Abhishek Kapoor, CEO, Puravankara.

Atul Goyal, chief financial officer, Brigade Enterprises also said that while an increase in interest rates for housing loans is there, the demand that the sector is currently witnessing is expected to remain the same.
